From 2005 to March 2009, the game was known as Albattross18 in North America. On March 8, 2009, a game control was passed from OGPlanet to SG Interactive (then Ntreev USA), which closed the game for a month for technical upgrades and re-released the game as PangYa a month later. In May 2014, SG Interactive transferred publishing rights to MAYN Interactive and in late 2014 transferred publishing rights to Smilegate Europe. On December 12, 2016, PangYa servers in North America shut down, along their websites and forums.[2], Korean servers were closed on August 29, 2016, and Japanese servers, operated by Gamepot[3], were closed on November 10, 2017. Thai servers operated by Ini3 Digital[4] remain open. PangYa game is designed like most other golf games. The performance and accuracy of the shot are determined by the meter located at the bottom of the screen, using the three-click method: one click to activate the meter bar, one click to set the power, and one click to set the accuracy. Clicking is done either by moving the mouse pointer over the panel and clicking, or by simply pressing spacebar. If the player hit the ball with perfect (or almost perfect) accuracy, the shot is called PangYa. Missing PangYa will result in a loss of performance, either a 'hook' (where the ball angles to the left of the intended trajectory) or a 'slice' (where the ball angles to the right of the intended trajectory). The resemblance of PangYa to other online golf games ends here. The graphics of the game are anime derived, with many of its features resulting from the creative imagination, as opposed to realism. Golf clubs reminiscent of household products or baseball bats use some characters and courses like Silvia Cannon and Wiz Wiz are set in fantasy realms. In addition, it is possible to perform physically impossible special shots. Game fashion PangYa has several game modes. Versus Mode - In versus mode, players compete against each other again with two to four players for 3, 6, 9, or 18 holes. The winners are determined by the score. In case of a draw, pang is used to select the winner. Stroke Play is one of the options versus mode where players compete for moves and scores. Match Play, unlike stroke play, is determined by the winner of the hole. Players still have to get lower scores than their opponent on each hole to win a hole, but they must have the most wins to win the whole game. The match is played with two teams: the red team and blue team. Players can go up against another player or play with a partner against another player and their partner. If someone ends up in the middle of the game, the whole game is done. Tournament mode - a mode where 4 to 30 players compete in real time. There are no turns, but there is a rating system. Regular tournament mode: There is a rating system that determines who is the best player of the round. There are also special bonus pang awards for various achievements. Trophies are also obtained in this mode. A team tournament needs to play 12 to 30 people. Like Match Play, there is a red team and a blue team. Both teams need to have the same number of people to get started. At the end of the game, each team score is tallied and used to determine the winner. Guild Toumey is when the guild fights against another guild. Players must join the guild to play. Its function is similar to a team tournament. Battle Mode - a special mode PangYa, which differs from the original concept. Pang Battle is a special versus mode where players gamble with pang. Players receive pang other players for winning the hole. If there is a draw on the hole, it is transferred to the next hole, which will cause the amount of the total pang to double or double. If the game is finished and there is still a draw, it will approach the hole where players must be closest to the hole without chipping in the fastest time. Approach Mode is where 4 to 30 players compete to be the closest and fastest person to a hole without chipping in In Season 3, players pay 100 pang to play one hole. All pang is stored in a pot, with the top three players splitting the winnings. In rare times, the amount can double or even triple. Since season 4, entry/gambling has been eliminated and now participants can play up to nine holes with missions in which they must work together to win entries. No missions can appear much where its normal access mode without gambling, if there are multiple players who play this mode. Some missions are for gender play game, gender character, chipping-in, distance, etc. At the end of the game, players get prizes from treasure chests collected. Special shuffle course mode - Each hole is from a different course. The last hole is a special, new course that will give a great reward to the players. PSq's/Lounges – PSq, or Player Squares, are places where players can socialize and sell consumer pang items and pang clothing in any particular hole and of course in the game. Practice - Allows players to play the tutorial, as well as practice courses, and repeat all the holes they want. Chip Mode - Allows players to practice getting holes in one. Replacement and upgrade of Tiki Magic Ball systems - Tiki Magic Ball is a recycling system where players can trade their unwanted clubs and equipment for Tiki points. Players can exchange Tiki points for items in a Cauldron Cadie or upgrade their performance, control, rotation or curve slots in character Cadie's Boiler – Cadie's Boiler is a currency exchange where players can exchange items to create more useful items, as well as allow the player to exchange gacha items for the same gacha items only in a different color or style. Lolo Card Deck - Lolo Card Deck is a currency exchange card where the player can combine 3 cards for better or worse card. Character Mastery - Character Mastery is an upgrade system that allows players to upgrade their power, control, accuracy, rotation and curves with pang. Players can also upgrade available slots with Tiki points. Club Workshop – Club Workshop is a Club Upgrade system that allows players to upgrade their clubs for better stats. Clubs Player will start the game with the default golf club. As the player progresses, they have the opportunity to purchase new clubs, either using Pang or Cookies (Points in North America server). Players can also get a free Lucky Air Knight club from a tutorial that works until they rank in junior E. Club kits are different from each other, as far as statistics are provided, available upgrade slots, level requirements, and appearance. As in real golf, PangYa club kits contain 4 basic type clubs: forests, irons, wedges, and putters. Currency Currency PangYa is Pang, Pang's usually earned the finishing hole on par or better, pulling off strong shots, and making heavy chip-ins. Pang can be used in the store to purchase equipment or items. Pang can also be used to upgrade equipment such as golf clubs, or the characters themselves, increasing their stats. A cookie system has also been set up on most PangYa servers, allowing people to buy devices and items using real cash. The Rage Points system (which is a system designed to allow their respective virtual credit systems to be used with multiple games) replaces the cookie system, but is identical in use. Ranking In PangYa, the rating system is used. As players continue to compete in multiple games in tournament mode or match play, they will gain more experience points and move up the order. Most new players, if not all, start with rookie F rankings and work their way up. The current maximum achievable rank is Infinity Legend A. The only exception is Game Masters, which have their own rank, GM. When displaying in the lobby, it's the highest position of all. Special shots in PangYa, special shots are achieved by doing different key combinations. The standard perfect shot is done by hitting a shot that lands in a white bar, causing the voice to cheer pangya!. Under certain conditions, players can hit shots like Power Topspin, Power Backspin and Power Curve to help them avoid obstacles or chip the ball into the hole. More complex shots can be achieved, such as Super Pangya, which adds 10-20 yards per shot (depending on how much power bars are spent on a shot), as well as cobra, Tomahawk and Spike, which change the trajectory of the shot considerably. The game was in the joint development of Ntreev Soft and Tecmo, was released on December 2, 2006, Tecmo in Japan, and was released on December 12 of the same year in the U.S. Super Swing Golf was built from the ground up for the Wii, but still shares similar attributes with the PC version of the game. A sequel to Super Swing Golf, Super Swing Golf: Season 2, has also been released, featuring new entries such as Deep Inferno, Pink Wind, and Ice Spa courses from PangYa to PC, as well as Special Shot 'Spike'. Pang'Ya: Fantasy Golf On June 23rd, 2009, Tomy (licensed from CS Telecom) released Pang'Ya: Fantasy Golf for Sony PSP in North America. [5] Pang'Ya M On November 18, 2014, NCSOFT (in collaboration with Ntreev Soft) announced Pang'Ya Mobile for iOS and Android. Development progress has not been updated for several years, but October 5, 2017, NCSOFT licensed Pang'Ya Mobile to LINE in order to launch gaming services in Thailand, Taiwan and Indonesia. Thailand was the first country that Pang'Ya Mobile launched in, with a short open beta period prior to its wide release. The game is available in Thai, Korean, Japanese and English. On December 30, 2019, it was announced on the official Facebook page that Pang'Ya Mobile would close on February 7, 2020. However, NCSOFT has launched Pangya M, a redevelopment version of Pang'Ya Mobile on July 3, 2020. Scheduled for release as a cross-platformer between the mobile version and the PC version in the NCSoft Purple platform.
